CHANGE OF FEELING IN ENGLEWOOD.

CROWING BELIEF THAT HE MUST LEAVE THE TOWN AND THE CHURCH-NOT YET OUT OF DANGER, The revulsion of feeling in Englewood against the lev. Mr. Ward is now complete. The theory of tem-erary insanity, with which his friends at first sought er over his attempt to kill his wife and daughter, been shatlered entirely by the secent damaging to cover over his attempt to kill his wife and daughter, has been shattered entirely by the recent damaging charges of his wite's relatives. The rector himself is in no condition, either mental or physical, to make a statement of his side of the case now. Meanwhile vague rumors of his mistreatment, not only of this wife, but of his other wives; of his vagaries, bad semper and uncleaical indulgences, are aflost on every side. His closest friends seem to have lost confidence in him and refuse to say a word in his defence. And whether a prosecution is begun or not against him, it is plant that as quickly as he recovers he will have to leave the town and charreb.

The wounded man knews nothing, of course, of the charges made by his wife. He has been suspicious for some days, however, that he night be prosecuted for the shooting. One of his first questions to the doctors on the morning after the affair, it is said. Was: "Do you think they will prosecute me for this!" Once or twice after that he asked how Mr. and Mrs. Vanderpoel left toward him. The doctors told him that the whole thing was looked on as an unfortunit accident, and on bearing this he became much more easy in mind. He next expressed se great desire to read the newspapers and wanted to knew particularly what they had said about him. He was put off, however, with the assurance that all the papers had spoken kindly about him personally, explaining his sirange actious as the treaks of an insane man. All this soothed his suspicions, apparently, and it was not until he learned that his wife had gone to New-York with Mrs. Hibbard that they broke out again in full force. He had not quite recovered yeaterday from the excitement and anger into which the news of his wife's departure threw him on Tuesday. He still remonstrated with the physicians about it, and called it a brutal act and a device to injure him on the part of Mrs. Ward's relatives.

His condition, Dr. Baldwin said, was apparently unchanged yesterday. He was certainly uo worse, though at a critical s chances were, on the whole, that the clergyman would get well.

One of Mr. Ward's friends, a member of St. Paul's Church, said that the charges made by the rector's wife were a surprise and shock to most of the congregation. No one, of course, but Mrs. Ward's relatives would be likely to know of any domestic difficulties. All had seemed smooth on the surface before, but it was next to impossible to doubt that the charges of mistreatment, or some of them at least, were true. Mr. Ward's record was all against him. His temper was violent and his talk and actions were often eccentric. And a man who could call up his wire three priour times in the night to look for trifling things and think nothing of it—for Mrs. Ward had spoken of these interriptions as a matter at course—was cerer iour times in the night to look for trifling things and think nothing of it—for Mrs. Ward had spoken of these interruptions as a matter of course—was certainly anything but a considerate husband. There was only one thing for Mr. Ward to do now—to leave the church and Engle rood as soon as possible. The congregation had to look at the affair in one of two lights. Either the rector was insune when he shot his wife, or he fired at her deliberately in a burst of anger. It he was subject to fits or insanity, he ought to be in an asylum. It he committed a real assault, he should be prosecuted and sent to prison.

The St. Pani's vestry is looking forward already to making some permanent arrangement for the parish. The question which perplexes most of the vestrymen now is how to get Mr. Ward to resign. "It is all in his own hands," said one of them yesterday. "We can't force him to resign by any action or resolution. He is our pastor still, and though we can stay away from church and stop paying pew-rents, we cannot get rid of him off-hand. He may be stubborn or ugly about resigning, but the church will be impossible any longer with Mr. Ward as rector."

Mr. Ward before the shooting had arranged for a series of Thursday evening lectures by other clergy-men during Lent. The Rev. Dr. Charles L. Tiffany, of Zion Church, New-York, was on his list for last night. The Rev. Mr. Boggs has charge of the regular Lenten services, which have been going on this week as usual.

Mrs. Ward will probably make her home for some Lenten services, which have been going on this week as usual.

Mrs. Ward will probably make her home for some time at ex-Judge Vanderpoel's house, No. I West lixteenth-st. She lived with the ex-Judge's family before she was married and the wedding took place last August in Mr. Vanderpoel's country-house at Kinderhook. Mrs. Ward was much better yesterday. She has recovered altogether from the shock of the shooting ten days ago and the wound in her cheek is healing rapidly. It will leave nothing but a sar, the doctors say. The change from the Englewood rectory with its depressing associations has had a marked effect on Mrs. Ward's condition. She is cheerful now and has lost all of her anxety and nervousness.

Ex-Judge Vanderpoel was in Albany yesterday. His soo, Augustus H. Vanderpoel, of the firm of Vanderpoel, Green & Cuming, said that no further statement would be given out on the part of Mrs. Ward's relatives. Vanderpoel, Green & Cuming would probably aid in the case if it came into court. Matters would have to rest for the present until Mr. Ward recovered or, at least, was out of danger. Mr. Vanderpoel would not say whether or not Mrs. Ward intended to apply for a divorce.

The committee is expected to begin its workby making inquiries in relation to the amount of fees received by the County Clerk. It is expected that as soon as the inquiries in regard to these departments are completed the management of District-Attorney Ridgway's office will be searched into.

Mr. Parsons said yesterday that the counsel were ready to proceed, and unless something unforeasen securred the taking of testiaony would begin to-day. A BROKER CHARGED WITH FORGERY. ries Strachle, a well-known broker and member of the Maritime Exchange, whose office is at No. 33 Southirt yesterday, charged with forgery. Moore & Co., of No. 142 Pearl-st, for $1,500. When the Giulio arrived at Malta the draft was presented for payment, but the captain retused to honor it, procuring it a forgery. The vessel was detained on an attachment for several days while an investigation was being made and did not return to New-York until Monday hat, when the captain placed the affair in the hands of the police. Detective Sergeant Crowley arrested Mr. Krachle at his office and Justice Duffy remanded him for examination this morning.

CONTEST OF MRS. ABRAHAM DAVIS'S WILL. TO BREAK A BEQUEST DISPOSING OF AN HISTORIC

GREENWICH, Conn. March 3.—Years and years ago when that part of New-York City above Canal-st, was a pasture ground for cattle, Abraham B. and Silas Davis conducted a successful flour business at No. 192 Cherry-st. Their fathers betore them had been engaged in buying and selling grain, and the old tide mill, with uncouth oaken beams, ratters and floors, where corn was ground for the Revolutionary Army and loaded into vessels in the Sound, is still standing in this town, almost as stanch as ever, except for the giving away of the under pinning which was washed out by a freshet a year or two ago. Abraham B. and Silas Davis made a fortune in the flour business. Abraham remained a bachelor until late in life, when he married Mrs. Kotman, a widow with whom he boarded. He built a handsome house here coating $30,000. This house is now used as a hotel, called the Mansion. Not long after his marriage Mr. Davis became a paratytic and in 1878 died, leaving his estate, valued at $450,000 in New-York and Connecticut property, to his wife. A long and holy contested lawsuit was lought. After being out all day the jury returned a verdict sustaining the will.

In 1883 Mrs. Davis died and left a will bequeathing all her property to Mrs. Kotman, her daughter-in-law. By the law of the State an appeal from the probate of a will must be made within three years from the time of its filing. On the last night of the last day of the three years an appeal was taken from the probate of Mrs. Davis's will by L. W. Kennedy, of St. Louis, a relative of Mrs. Davis, whose malden name was Kennedy. It is learned that the probable ground of opposition to the probate of the will is that undue influence was used with Mrs. Davis. Should the attempt to break the will prove successful, then it will be claimed that net ther Mrs. Kennedy and others of that tamily. There are some persons here who are well informed about the history of the ramily who say that the present suit will be settled by paying the St. Louis claimant his demands, thus saving the cost of the law suit and the making tubic of the t when that part of New-York City above Canal-st, was pasture ground for cattle, Abraham B. and Silas

THE CORONET FLOATED.

COAL AND PROVISIONS STOWED AWAY-THE DAUNT-LESS REMAINS AT ANCHOR.

After a delay of three days, caused by the low tides resulting from continual northerly and westerly winds, the Coronet was finally floated from the screw-dock at Market-st., at 12:45 a. m. yesterday.

She was at once hauled around into the slip just north of the screw-dock and there she will remain until she is fully ready for her ocean race with the Dauntless. Late Wednesday after-noon, after the dock sections had been sunk, her foresail, of the canvas was to be put in position yesterday but after bending the topsails Captain Crosby decided but after bending the topsalis Captain Crosby decided that the weather looked too threatening to spread the new mainsail, and suspended operations aloft. The sailors found plenty to do on deck to keep them occupied until sunset. Two new anchors were placed in wooden beds just aft of the foremast and several new ringboits were put in the deck in places where they are likely to prove efficacious in heavy weather. Two tons of coal were placed in the bin forward of the galley and enough provisions to last the boat's company for thirty days were stowed away in the hold. If the weather is pleasant to-day the rest of the sails will be bent, the square-sail yard will be put in position and the spare spars will be fastened to the deck.

Although there was plenty of wind, the Dauntless remained at anchor throughout the day off Tompkins-ville instead of making a trial trip, as had been intended. Captain Colt is so well satisfied with the way his yacht acted in the gale last Sunday that he is not particularly anxious to take her out again, although he may do so tomorrow or the next day. Unless the weather between now and Tuesday proves disagreeable there is no apparent reason why the race should not be started on that day, provided the wind is westerly.

"HIS SOUL IS MARCHING ON."

From the Charleston (S. C.) News and Courses.

Several days ago Major Henry E. Young received a letter from John Brown, jr., the son of "John Brown, of Harper's Ferry," including a post office money order for the relief of the earthquake sufferers of Charleston. The amount was small, but if every dollar sent had been a ton of gold the gift would not have been more valuable or more highly appreciated. Mr. Brown's letter is the grandest tribute be could have paid to his father's memory, and Major Young's disposition of his gift sending it to the Confederate Orphans' Home is the most appropriate that could have been made. "John Brown's soul is marching on," but it is marching to the music of a reunited and indestructible Union.
